SCHOOL NEWS

This Friday the games play at Black Earth.

Mrs. Wm. Swanson's visited high school last Friday.

The typewriting classes are making copies of the play "Gaily," which will be given at the time in March.

The last number of the Lycra course was last Tuesday night. It was a very interesting and timely lecture on the subject "Chords and Intervals."

The Parent-Teachers Association will meet Monday evening, February 8th. A very good program is planned. Mr. Hatfield, of Wauk City, will give a talk on the work of the P.T.A.

Man High School boys and girls basketball teams were defeated by the Middleton High School teams. The score of the girls team was 5 to 5. The score of the boys' game was 28 to 4.

A week from tonight the high school basket ball teams meet the Sauk City high school team here. This is looked forward to as an evening of real fun. Let's look to show the girls' victory to show the boys and girls game are still back of them.

The eighth grade Agriculture class will begin the study of the Babcock test next week. After a reasonable degree of proficiency has been acquired, it is hoped that they may have a chance to test actual milk samples from farms in this vicinity.

The leaders of the six weeks' period which closed with the beginning of the spring, summer, etc.

Second Grade—Supt. Margaret Stumpf; second, Jean Ingalls and William Jones SS.

English Class—Miss Helen Spiegel; second, Lydia Koeppl SS & 4.

The cast of characters of the play "Folly" are: Lorraine Lawler, June.

When Company Comes

Just before company comes I can hear
Gee, but we're busy, all right!
Mother keeps everyone out of my room
Getting them up too 'fore o' night.
All of us kids hafsa pick up our toys,
Even if we want t' play—
I don't see why, just cause somebody comes,
Dogs hafsa be just go away!

Gumma an' Daddy're busy, you bet;
They hafsa clean up the rooms.
They ain't glad I'm too little t' use
Vacuum—an' dust-mop an' broom!
Then all the furniture hafsa be moved—
Mother has got a new place to sit.
An' when my Dad come to kick, Mother says,
"Isn't that just like a man?"

When folks 're comin' from some other town,
Nobody gets any rest.
Till Mother goes down an' buys lots of stuff
So we'll appear presentable best!—
Gumma asks why when company comes
We hafsa change all our ways?
Why can't we keep right on havin' some fun
Just like we do other days?

ADVENTURES OF MAZIE

"TIKES PIKE"

WHAT PRICE CRIME?
By Prof. J. L. Gillis, Ph. D., University of Wisconsin

We have more than 3,000 county jails in the United States; about 11 in Wisconsin. Into them we plunk the man charged with crime who has not been tried, the drunkard, the prostitute, the old and the young, the innocent criminal, and the "first offender."

Many of these jails are so such unsanitary and unhygienic places would not permit their stock to be kept in there, and into them we throw human beings to rot physically and morally.

We provide the work with which they can occupy their time. Promiscuous association goes on within these. The young man arrested for the first time when he enters the jail as helpful influence to encourage him to relive that he will never again be found guilty of disloyalty.

On the contrary, he associates with hardened criminals who laugh at their fears, confirm him in an anti-social attitude, and send him out thoroughly disloyal.

In short, our jails are schools of crime which prepare men for a career.

What about our courts which are supposed to be the instruments of justice? Notice how frequently trials are delayed while the accused lie in jail. Legal technicalities are invoked by sharp lawyers, retrials are moved, or the jury is sequestered for days, or the accused is held over by the judges are reversed on an error in the indictment or because of a legal technicality in the process, of the trial which has, nevertheless, not jeopardized a fair trial to the accused.

The man who can hit skilled lawyers often escapes no matter how guilty he may be, while the poor, friendless man is sent to prison.

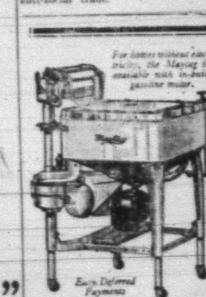

Fortunately, in spite of our states which do not believe in capital punishment, the courts are being slowly reformed. Nevertheless, on the whole we have to say that our institutions for the correction of criminals are a failure. The Judge and the jury are bound by the penalties fixed in the law.

Our criminal procedure must be reformed. The technicalities which now are used to defeat the ends of justice must be abrogated. The delays must be abolished.

Punishment is effective in deterring men from crime and in intimidating those once convicted from repeating their crime, not in proportion to its severity, but in proportion to its swiftness and certainty.

Every man adjudged guilty of the crime charged, unless he be insane, is sent to jail, whether he is to be reformed or to go to prison. He may be beaten-minded in recent survey of the inmates of Waupun reformatory showed 12 per cent to be brain-frieded, or he may have an abnormal personality. Yet he must go to prison.

In prison he creates problems of discipline for the management of the prison. In him is generated a spirit of rebellion. He is not educated according to his physical or mental make-up in a way that can correct his health and transform his character. But, in association with the most desperate criminals in the state, he learns new tricks for his anti-social trade.

A REAL RAIL RECORD

For the sixth consecutive year the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad has carried its passengers without a single fatal injury in a train accident.

In these six years, about eighty million passengers have traveled on its trains. The average journey was about sixty miles.

A total of eighty million passengers riding an average distance of 400 miles each day, without a fatality equal to one passenger traveling four billion eight hundred million miles and finding fit as a fiddle at the end of the trip!

The amount of travel represented by this figure is difficult to grasp. It may add in double its magnitude to consider that, riding nine days and night at the rate of sixty miles per hour, it would take a passenger more than 1,000 years to travel that distance!

Therefore, our common ancestor, Adam, on the day of his creation (14,000 years ago), when he got into the Garden of Eden, had stepped aboard a Milwaukee High-speed train and settled down comfortably in one of the fine sleepers hauled by a mammoth electric locomotive. He would not only have escaped some domestic, agricultural, and other difficulties, but would have still ahead of him the pleasant prospect of more than 2,000 years of safe, smooth and speedy travel before the road to heaven eight times more round trips were cleared.

A record such as this is unequivocal evidence of sustained cooperative effort on the part of the officers and employees of this great railroad to safeguard those traveling on its trains.

It should be worse. No magazine really is as saugy as the cover design indicates.

Buy across the Counter

WHEN you buy across the counter in the stores of this town, you are using good business judgment. Why? There are many reasons, but one of the most important is this:

You can buy what you want at the price you wish to pay! You are not obliged to accept "something just as good," because you are in a position to compare values and make your own selections.

When you trade at home you are helping your friends to help you! And there is no finer thing in life than neighborly co-operation. It always pays—in happiness and satisfaction as well as dollars and cents.

The last of the war savings stamps handed by the government and now payable is the 1927 bond issued Jan. 1, 1928. All war savings stamps in the hands of owners are now payable. The registration records at the post office indicate that there are a great many of the stamps still in the hands of their original owners, some being of the issue of 1918, which matured four years ago. The cause for failure to request payment are many, but a great number of owners have been unable to locate their bonds, and many have failed to register them.

AT THE MAJESTIC THEATRE

Positive Burton's "The Flapper" which ran in three hundred newspapers as a serial, had as its subtitle—"The Story of a Jazz Bride." In the screen version Warner have changed the title to "His Jazz Bride." This comes to the Majestic Theatre with Marie Prevost and Max Baer as the stars.

Flucky hours and heroines in the plot—communists. What of stock behind the scenes? There's plenty of it, even Al Green, prominent Hollywood motion picture director. To prove his contention, Green cited an instance during the filming of his most recent production. "The Girl From Missouri," in the cast of which Barbara La Marr and Lewis Stone were featured, Miss La Marr, who had been sitting after her arrival from New York, refused a postponement of filming and rearrangement of release schedule, and once she had begun, she refused to quit although her dress was wet. "On the day we photographed a whitewashed fence which the script called for later, she dashed into the water after her coat and started down the stairs

SESQUICENTENNIAL HISTORY SKETCHES

The one hundred and fifteenth anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence will be observed by the Sesquicentennial International Exposition.

Gloria Dei Church

Time has played its artist in vesting Old Swedes' Church—Gloria Dei in Philadelphia with a quantity of beauty that will grace a bazaar or exhibition during the sesquicentennial International Exposition.

Plans to plant a colony on the shores of the Delaware about the middle of the seventh century. The next year brought these bold-fearing, industrious people to America.

They found a home on the "Yeates" land and sought to build a place of worship. Tidings had been received of the site of a block house built in 1689, and used as a divine worship until the present church was erected.

In 1707 the Swedish king sent over a number of Bibles, prayer books, and other religious books. In 1710, in a declaration of the duties of the church officers the following was accepted: "To inspect the behavior of the people in their respective offices, admonish those that misbehave, and proceed with them further, if necessary."

The building is thirty feet in width by sixty feet in depth and stands on the west side of Swanson Street.

Changes have been made since 1707, when the dedication of the present building took place. A vestry has been added and support for strengthening the walls have been required.

In 1848 side galleries were erected to accommodate the increasing membership. A new organ was purchased and the old pews and pulpit were replaced by those of more modern design.

The same carved cherubs still decorate the organ loft. The baptismal font at the left of the altar is the original one brought from Sweden. In the chancel and in the graveyard repose the remains of many of the first pastors and their wives.

steps to the stage level when she was seized with a fainting spell. Holding her grip on her favorite, she managed to hold her head and screen down the three steps. Then she collapsed and fainted. The next day her ankles were swollen and very black and blue, and the pain intense; but she insisted on continuing her service, not only that day but on succeeding ones, until the picture was finished." According to reports he died last Saturday.

Herbster as the most colorful eye of the oil fields ever seen on the screen, and living up to his reputation as a local hero, where it has been shown. Associated Arts' latest F. R. production, "Flaming Waters" comes on Tuesday. It has a sweep and surge as relentless as the thundering surf on the beach; and certainly a lot more spectacular. "Flaming Waters" is lurid melodrama, and very melodrama. It deserves all the things that have been said of it.

The scenes in which the reverend overcomes the "Devil" are down upon the houses of the crooks, with its sweeping revue shots which follow not a punch in the picture which it is hard to overestimate. Why this artful and fertile field of melodrama has not been used more in the past by picture producers is not easy to understand.

In "The Golden Arrow," the new coming next Thursday, Herbert will not be seen as a vicious, ambitious girl from a small country town and sister as the beautiful wife of a successful banker. The story is one of intrigue and romance, and is based on a novel written by Ruth Cross. Henry Gordon will be seen opposite Miss Chastwick in the role of the overture.

THEME IS NOTHING SMALL ABOUT WISCONSIN

The area of Wisconsin is 56,000 square miles. This is greater than the area of England, or Cuba, or Oregon. Wisconsin is less than a fourth the area of Texas, and less than half as large as Colorado.

of this area of 56,000 square miles a large part was covered by the great glacier that thousands of years ago spread over the northern part of North America. But in the southwestern part of the state there is an area of limestone ridges that was unaffected by the ice.

Eastern Wisconsin was much like the western part of the state before the glacier lowered the tops of the hills and filled up the valleys until the present topography can be described as a gentle undulating landscape with only occasional "monocline" hills and steep ridge faces to alter the general condition.

In many of the low areas the land is covered by lakes, ponds or swamps which are generally shallow in the driftless area.

The northern part of the state is really a remnant of a once mountainous area. Long periods of erosion were the mountains down almost to a plain—a plateau.

Here and there are hills that rise above the plain such as the Hill Ridge, Mt. Madison, Devil's Lake and others. These are mostly rounded and smooth, and are generally remnants of former mountains.

Nearly all of this area has been glaciated and the irregular, uneven drift was spread over this old plateau.

Today the drift is still being removed by water making the numerous lakes of the northern part of the state.

This then is the foundation upon which has been, and will be, built the prosperity of Wisconsin past, present, and future. Within the boundaries of the state have been, and are to be found, the resources which Wisconsin people have used in supplying themselves with an abundance of the necessities of life, the comforts, the conveniences, and many of the luxuries of life. Here a people made up of individuals of all nationalities, is working out its own destiny and contributing liberally to the building of western civilization.

ARSON

"Of all the crimes, human inhuman and pitiless, that befoul the dockets of American law courts, none but murder is quite so base and so abhorrent as arson. In one respect, indeed, it even exceeds in heinousness the capital offense for unlike murder, arson by its very nature can be committed except in cold "Hardly to be conceived is such a proceeding as unpremeditated arson. The dastardly plot of arson always must be concocted in advance, the lurid torch kindled beforehand to steady fingers, the sickening flames fanned into strength with every attention.

Neither a woman's passion, a number of rascals, nor the combined efforts of a monetary or political cabal can bring about the act of arson; in fact, the presence of any of these conditions could serve but to embolden the commission of the deed, not further it. There can be no recklessness, nothing of the accidental, in the planning and execution of arson.

It is, therefore, in this despicable right that arson should be viewed by justice and by the public generally which supplies the talisman. Arsonist is placed in the records that such an attitude as this is common.

Sometimes, however, the culprit is added to the crime of arson.

The knowledge that humans are wretches to slumber within the building does not stay or halt the head applying the torch.

Moreover, the people, not insurance companies, pay the fire damage caused by the acts of arsonists. They pay in larger insurance premiums and in increased costs of things purchased.

It passes human understanding why any sympathy of jurors or the public should be wasted on these callous vipers.—Industrial Commission.

Married men shouldn't drink and single ones have no cause for drinking.

One way to stop a daughter from crossing her knees is to put her into a pair of concert stockings.

A Black Earth man says he can remember the time that his son, 26, had a woman use the word leg when referring to a table or a piano.
