NO. 50

Lynch Found Not Guilty.

Mathew B. Lynch, Madison policeman, who shot and killed Carl R. Jandorf, a sophomore of the University of Wisconsin, last May, was found not guilty by a jury in Judge Gorman's court, at Jefferson, where the trial was held, at 9:57 o'clock yesterday morning. The court room was crowded, and when the verdict was given a near of applause broke from the audience. The jury went out Wednesday afternoon and returned its verdict after a deliberation of 10 hours and 37 minutes. Judge Gorman having allowed it to retire shortly after 10:30 Wednesday night. Lynch has continued to draw his full salary since the charge of first degree murder was lodged against him.

The Hot Lunch Campaign.

Hot lunches in every one of Dane county's 240 rural schools is the aim of the Hot Lunch Campaign being organized by the county nurses, Miss Gertrude Burnson and Miss Mabel Danielson. The campaign will be on from January 17 to January 29, under the direction of the supervising teachers, Miss Anna Lundberg, Miss Eleanor Welsman, Miss Hannah Gjelle, and Miss Clara Hakevich, the local teachers, and the nurses of Dane county. The movement has the full endorsement and support of the Dane county health committee: T. G. Lingard, of Mt. Horeb, chairman, the two county superintendents, Myrta Mae of Stoughton, and T. S. Thompson, of Mt. Horeb, Judge A. C. Hoppman, of Madison, Dr. F. F. Bowman, Madison, and Mrs. Grace Wyman Stone, of Fitchburg.

Dane county already stands forth in the state in point of number of schools serving hot lunches, and the nurses and teachers hope as a result of the forthcoming campaign to attain a still higher rank.

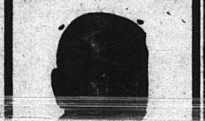

Each of the four schools doing the best work will be awarded a case of corn or peas given by the Fairbank Canning Company of the Forest, and the Madison Canning Company.

Dr. J. H. Stiffman and his assistants in home economics work at the University of Wisconsin will act as judges in the competition.

Scoring the work, the judges will consider the following points: the number of times hot lunches are served during the two weeks of the contest; the kinds and varieties of hot dishes served; and the method of serving and eating, the talks given by children, parents, posters made at home or at school, and a report written by the pupils with the teacher's supervision.

During the campaign, talks will be given in the schools upon the food value of the things the children eat. They will learn how milk makes muscle and bone, that eggs are a good kind of food for children, that fruits give children pep and go, and vegetables give them vigor and vim, and how even can-

PROPRIETORS

It is good for children when eaten at the proper time.

The teachers are fully convinced of the value of serving hot lunches to their pupils. They have invariably found that a comfortable lunch quickly eaten means better work in classes and speller discipline.

Before the campaign opens, the children in many of the schools will be presented with Little Hot Lunch play written by Miss Jeanie A. Janusz, superintending teacher of La Crosse county. Copies of this play are being sent out to the schools by Mrs. Henry P. Morgan, director of public health nursing and food service.

How Not To Take Cold.

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, eat or eat, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting their feet wet. When they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

Aid To Land Owners In Tree Planting.

In order to encourage farmers and other land and estate owners to plant trees for windbreak and woodlot purposes or for the reclaiming of idle or margin land within the state, the Conservation Commission will be prepared during the spring of 1921 to furnish colorless trees to private parties at the cost of raising them. At present approximately one million young trees are growing in the state forest nursery, located at Trout Lake, Wis. Some over a quarter million of these trees will be available for planting during the coming spring. This stock is all very thrifty and free from pests or diseases. It will make ideal stock for the planting of windbreaks, the improvement of worn out woodlands, or for reclamation of estates, waste or idle corner lands. Trees of the following species are available, and the prices are based on the size and age of the plant: Stock:

Seedlings of white pine, Norway pine, Scotch pine, Norway spruce, white spruce, European larch, and white cedar, $2.50 to $4.00 per 1,000.

Young plants of white pine, Norway pine, Scotch pine and Norway spruce, $5.00 to $7.00 per 1,000.

The policy of the commission to cooperate with farmers or other equal timber holders in the matter of the improvement of their holdings or in the marketing of their mature timber will also be continued during the coming year. On request to the commission an expert forester will make a personal examination of the land, in company with the owner, tenant or farm superintendent. During these examinations advice as to the best methods of improving the woodland will be discussed, and later a practical working plan report, with recommendations, will be prepared for the owner. This report will not only include the most practical methods for the disposal of the mature part of the woodland, but will consider the planting of new trees, and the general improvement of the land. The only expense connected with these land examinations will be that of travel and maintenance of the man who examines the property. Application for planning should be made to the Conservation Commission, Madison, Wisconsin.

FRIENDS AMAZED AT HIS RECOVERY.

Could Hardly Hobble Around for Rheumatism, Milwaukee Man Now Walks As Well As Anyone.

"Three weeks ago I was hobbling around with a cane, my rheumatism was so bad, but since taking Tanlac I can walk as good as any man in town," said H. Joe Bowman, Box 51, R. F. D. No. 6, Waukesha, Wis. "For nearly eight years," he continued, "I had been so crippled up with rheumatism in my left knee that I had to use sticks to be able to get around. For weeks at a time I would be laid up in bed flat on my back hardly able to move. Whenever I sat down in a chair I had to press right slow on my knee cap to straighten out my leg, and when I went to get up I could hardly keep from crying out from the pain. The muscles in my left leg were terribly sore, and I was just about past going."

"Now this was the shape I was in only three weeks ago. My wife says it hardly seems possible that any medicine could make such a difference in anybody in so short a time as Tanlac has in me."

"All the pain and soreness are about gone and I have picked up about seven pounds in weight and simply feel fine. Yes, sir, you can put me down for Tanlac and I want to go on record as saying that it is the best medicine ever sold in a drug store."

TANLAC is sold in Mazomanie by Geo. A. Shields; in Mt. Horeb by C. L. Robertson; and in Sun Prairie by W. C. Schmitt—advertisers.

Charring Does Not Preserve Wood.

Charring is of little value in protecting the butts of fence posts and telephone poles from decay. This is shown by service tests made by the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory on fences of charred and untreated posts of various these tests to be even less durable than the untreated ones.

Theoretically, an area of charred wood around a post should prevent decay, because charcoal does not decay, or encourage the growth of fungi. But the charred area around a post is not usually a solid covering. It is checked through in many places. If posts are seasoned before they are charred, the charring does not reach to the bottom of the season checks which are always present. If green unchecked posts are charred, checks will open through the charred part as the wood seasons. In either case the unchecked portion of the post is exposed to fungus infection and will decay as rapidly as any untreated wood.

Charring deep enough to resist decay would, undoubtedly weaken a post of virtually any size.

TELEPHONE NUMBER 12.

MAZOMANIE, WIS., JAN. 14, 1921.

"Figures Don't Lie, But..."

On Monday afternoon a number of the business men of this place held a meeting at the village hall, in protest against the large increase in telephone rates which went into effect at the Mazomanie exchange the first of the year, and also to determine if possible a reasonable rate to submit to the Wisconsin Telephone Co., with the alternative of discontinuing their phones.

The matter of having a telephone installed or discontinued rests entirely with the individual. But changing the rate is another matter, and the protest may not now avail, whatever might have been its effect before the increase was granted.

Assuming that the new rate recently granted by the railroad commission has legally gone into effect, our impression is that this rate can neither be further raised nor lowered except upon the consent of the commission. The telephone company appeared at the hearing before the commission with figures showing ing a deficit during the past year; for the Mazomanie exchange of more than seven thousand dollars, and also showing that under the new rate there would still be a deficit for the current year. The commission granted the increase on the representation of the telephone company's statement of losses.

The telephone company can, no doubt, if it feels so disposed, file a new schedule of rates with the commission, setting a lower price for telephone service. But, in considering the figures presented and accepted at the hearing a few weeks ago, will the commission grant the reduction? Perhaps the telephone company can "revise" the figures, or, should the company go before the commission with the statement that it is willing to assume further losses for the privilege of serving the citizens of Mazomanie and vicinity, the commission would have to reverse itself to grant a decrease. In view of the figures previously submitted.

The railroad commission has authority to protect patrons of a public utility from being overcharged, likewise to permit the utility a fair rate of return on its investment.

And it is pretty much all done by figures. Since Monday's meeting the matter has developed into a boycott. Nearly all the business places in Mazomanie have ordered their phones discontinued, many residences, also, and the rural patrons are up in arms. About forty farmers west of town have signified their intention of discontinuing the telephone service, and similar reports come from other sections.

What the final outcome will be cannot be stated at this moment.

ORDINANCE.

An ordinance relating to the licensing and regulation of billiard and pool halls and bowling alleys.
License Required. Section 1. No person shall keep within the village of Mazomanie any billiard table, pool table or bowling alley, for the use of the public for hire or fee, unless such person shall first have obtained a license therefor as herein provided.
Application—Fee—Term. Section 2. Before the license required in the preceding section shall be issued, the applicant for such license shall make a written application therefor to the village clerk, stating by whom and where such billiard table, pool table or bowling alley is to be kept. No such license shall be issued unless the applicant shall pay into the village treasury the sum of ten dollars annually for each bowling alley and five dollars annually for each billiard table and pool table. Upon the performance by the applicant of all the requirements herein stated, the village clerk shall issue a license to the applicant. Such license shall expire on November 1 after the date thereof. No reduction in said license fee shall be made for a period of less than one year after November 1.

Manner of Keeping Place. Section 3. Every person who shall obtain a license as above provided shall keep his place of business in a quiet and orderly manner, and shall not permit therein any gambling, or boisterous or unlawful conduct, and shall keep such place of business closed between the hours of eleven o'clock p. m. and six o'clock a. m. following, and during all of the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday. No person to whom any such license shall be granted shall maintain or permit in front of the windows, any screen, curtain or other obstacle or thing of any description which might prevent or obstruct a clear and direct view of the room or place where any billiard table, pool table or bowling alley is located or maintained.

Minors under Eighteen Prohibited. Section 4. No minors under eighteen years of age shall play or be allowed to play, at any game of pool or billiards or bowling upon any such public or licensed table, and no such minor shall remain or be allowed to remain in any such pool room or billiard hall or bowling alley unless he be there upon business.

A Timely Suggestion.
This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the winter is over and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.

—The two boys apprehended for breaking or making away with electric lamps from the community Christmas tree have paid the village for all the twenty-three globes destroyed or missing, and have agreed to abide by the village board's decree that they remain off the streets after nine o'clock at night for a period of six months—taken all in all, a light punishment, as far as that goes. The guilty persons should be punished, of that there is no doubt, but should not these boys, if found guilty, have been punished under whatever name in the category of crimes their act merited? It is generally known that others, among them older persons, though their identity is not known, had previously stolen or destroyed the major portion of these electric globes, but as the score is now settled, these persons are allowed to go scot free. This, however, does not minimize the crime of the boys apprehended, if guilty, but these equally or more guilty, who avoided detection, have now little to fear.

Five hundred gallons of high test gasoline, blazing on the streets of Cambridge, startled the entire countryside Tuesday night and brought apparatus hurrying to the town in the belief that every building was on fire.

The accident, said to be the most peculiar in the history of the village, occurred when a truck owned by the High Test Oil Co. of Stoughton was delivering gasoline to a Cambridge garage. According to the driver, the key covering on the main street caused the heavy truck to become unmanageable. It skidded, started forward, and then slid swiftly backwards down a grade.

Crashing into a building, the truck came to a halt, but the collision smashed the container and the gasoline poured in a stream down the street.

A large stream of oil ran into the basement of the building and was set on fire by the burning furnace.

The fire immediately turned the corner of the building and spread to the houses of names that poured down the streets and brought the horrified citizens tumbling from their homes.

A hurry call for aid brought the fire trucks from Fort Atkinson and Deerfield to the spot. According to witnesses near the town, it appeared that the whole city was on fire.

With the aid of chemicals and the assistance of Cambridge volunteers, the flames were put out.

It was said that the total damage would not exceed $2,000. No one was injured.

Communication.

Dear Editor: In the present discussion of Sunday observance laws much is being said about an aversion to the rigid enforcement of laws already existing and the enactment of additional and more drastic laws. President Mr. Wilson to raise a question regarding the principles involved in the enactment or exemption of Sunday laws of whatever character. Is it American? Is it British? Is it Christian? To enforce Sunday observance by civil law?

1. The founders of this nation stood for the absolute separation between church and state. In the light of European and Colonial history surrounding religious legislation our forefathers instated that civil government could not of right concern itself about the propagation of religious dogmas, nor become a party of such propaganda. (See Art. VI, and the First and Tenth Amendments of U. S. Constitution.) Sunday observance is undeniably a religious institution.

The Sabbath institution was established by the Creator, and in His own honor he gave the law respecting its observance. Its observance must be rendered to Him and not to civil government, because he made it and it concerns man's relation to God only. In support of this and the preceding paragraph, note the Saviour's mandate, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." Therefore, Sabbath observance is not within the purview of the "powers that be" ordained of God but with definite limitations. (See Romans 13.)

3. It is admitted by the promoters of Sunday law enforcement from Constantine's time to the present that the prime object of such laws was and is to encourage church attendance on Sunday in the development of the Kingdom of God on earth. Against this propaganda (which is not in accord with Christ's teaching, I need not point to Bible instruction, "My kingdom is not of this world." "If any man hear my words and believe not, I judge him not." God's kingdom of glory is still future, else, why pray "Thy kingdom come"?)

Therefore, Sunday laws of whatsoever character are un-American, because the nation in its fundamental guarantees and protects the right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness"; they are un-Christian, because Christianity calls for volunteers, and abhors the use of force to compel obedience. "If any king, prince, or ruler would not oppress his servants (12)." Furthermore, inasmuch as the seventh day, Saturday, is the true biblical Sabbath, civil government commits a double and indefensible wrong by leading assistance to Sunday observance by civil law enforcement.

Book Review.

The Mammals of the County of Madison, has distributed to twenty-four schools in the town, included in which we understand, is the Mammalian Home school, copies of "The American Home" by E. V. McCollum, professor of chemical hygiene, and Nina Simmonds, instructor in chemical hygiene in the School of Hygiene and Public Health of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Frederick C. Matthews Co., Detroit, 1920.

One does not know what to feel your family and this is a book that will tell you. Also, if you want to know what are "deficiency diseases" due to faulty nutrition—and which are protective foods, preventing these diseases and others, the book will tell you this and more. In fact, it would seem there is nothing that is authoritative on the dietary values of foods that does not appear in the book of the American Hygiene Diet, a book that recently issued in Detroit and originating in Baltimore at the new School of Hygiene and Public Health of the Johns Hopkins University, where Dr. McCollum and Miss Simmonds, the authors, are doing every day valuable work in food experimentation and in able teaching of this subject.

Yet however scientific their own methods, this particular book is simplicity itself and the busiest and most wary of housekeepers must find it not only useful but positively thrilling with interest. Diets will be a different matter—and a far easier one after reading Home Diet. There need be no doubt however, who should have for dinner and for breakfast as well, from it.

A few friends are given, the care and keeping of foods is discussed and menus are included for a whole year, properly providing for various food necessities to maintain health and to build a fine body. Cakes are mentioned only to discard any calculation of them and the utmost senseness in diet is always urged. In deed, did we not know it to be at bottom quite scientific and the last, most enlightening word on diet, we might damn the book as old fashioned, so easily does it settle the question of foods in relation to physical vigor; this vigor being termed the "basis of health, enjoyment, achievement and long life." Nurses doing noble health work will find tremendous help in these pages and all teachers and to every individual who would know what he should eat. M. E. H.

Exodus of the state departments housed in committee rooms of the capitol started Monday afternoon in order to make room for the legislature. The state has found it necessary to make use of the Overland building in view of reported unsatisfactory conditions. It is expected that the legislature will give early consideration to the housing problem and to the contract which binds the state to pay $150,000 yearly for six years on the Overland building. Seven departments are scheduled to be moved to the new building. The state fair department, the state entomologist, the prohibition commissioner, the real estate brokers' board, the plumbers' division, the engineering department of the industrial commission and the blue sky department will make the change.

A Shobergan clairvoyant's assertion, expressed through the "Medium of Spiritism" that Pierre P. Author and Mrs. Philip M. Franzen were "intended for each other" made "the latest" for each other.

Philip Franzen, painter at the university, to sign a document relinquishing all claim to his wife and to her possessions. An ugly automatic pistol the named close to Franzen's face made his decision easy and also compelled his parting with $10 in currency and $100 in the form of a check, which author took with the remark that it would "pay our housekeeping expenses" as he left Franzen's apartments at 123 State street and boarded the 3:45 a. m. train for Chicago.

Production of practically all merchandise has been at reduced volume for three to five months.

In the meantime we have been consuming and wearing out clothing, houses, furnishings, automobiles, etc. It is possible we face a situation similar to that which came upon us in the spring of 1919.

America has not overbuilt or overreached her requirements in any fundamental or essential activity. The accumulated surplus of five years' prosperity is stored in many ways.

Not in years has everyone been so eager to work. Economical production and economical distribution will now be possible.

The Future of the Automobile and of Your Business

Vast Building Program Assures Prosperity

Your business will prosper just as soon as work upon the greatest building program America has ever known gets under way.

The immediate plans call for railroad improvements, new highways, thousands of homes, hotels, hospitals, bridges, sewer, and water extensions. The requirements exceed ten billion dollars in value.

Public work in every part of America has been neglected for three years. High costs and labor shortage last year caused the abandonment of nearly all such projects.

Now material prices are at lower levels than in months. Labor is eager to work. There is no real shortage of money. It is available for all necessary developments.

What It Means To You

Raw materials will be required. Men will be employed to build and repair. They will buy the articles they require. A hundred million people are meeting and working and producing.

The world's shelves are almost empty of thousands of needed articles.

The present is but a transfer from one activity to another. The demand for new work is so urgent it cannot be long delayed.

Remember What Was Said When War Ended

Hard times were predicted. Few saw how work could be found for four million men if the army were demobilized before industry could change from making war materials to peace time products. Merchants refused to buy, expecting falling prices. Manufacturers slowed down production.
