NO. 20

WASHINGTON.

Interesting Letter From the National Capital by Former Mazomanian.

Chevy Chase, Md., June 9, 1921.

Dear Mr. Swan: Recently I attended a Sunday service on the lawn of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian church, in the interest of a proposed $125,000 building. There were nine speakers, six were congressmen. The member from Louisiana said, "Every American loves each blade of grass, each tree, each flower in the National capital." Assuming that my Mazomanie friends have this patriotic interest, in Washington I yield to a temptation to write you once more before returning to Chicago.

The representative from Ohio said that the District of Columbia should be an object lesson, an example in everything for the country from one end to another.

I cannot say how fully Washington measures up as an all round ideal City, but at the last meeting of the local Congressional club I heard Senator Sterling, of South Dakota, give a fine address on "Religion as Expressed in Political Action," which showed that we have some Christian legislators as well as Christian voters. Certain it is that Washington is full of historic interest, its situation on the Potomac is picturesque, its national buildings grand and impressive.

A drawing of the District, that I saw, pictured its future possibilities growing out from the past and present, and showed the magnificent proportions planned by the first master architects, and proved that they were men of vision and of faith.

The inscriptions on some of the buildings add to their dignity. For example, instead of the name "Union Station," you see cut in the stone above one of its entrances, "He that would bring home the wealth of the Indies must carry the wealth of the Indies with him." So it is in traveling, a man must carry knowledge with him if he would bring home knowledge. On the marble $3,000,000 post office are these words, "Carrier of news and knowledge, instrument of trade and industry, promoter of mutual acquaintance, of peace and good-will among men and nations." Messenger of sympathy and love, servant of parted friends, consoler of the lonely, bond of the scattered family, enlarger of common life."

Lincoln Memorial inspires awe and veneration. It is not yet open to the public, but I with others got in on a "pass." The site is on the axis of the Capitol, the Washington Monument and the proposed Washington-Arlington Bridge. From wherever you see the Memorial it stands out alone, a plain, symmetrical stone and marble structure, a fitting tribute to that sensitive yet courageous soul, who followed the Right as he saw the Right. The huge columns each represent a state that constituted the Union at the time of Lincoln's death. Inwardly I saluted the "Visconsin pillar." In the center open space is an immense stone statue of Lincoln seated in a chair and looking out across the park that is in process of construction, to the Washington Monument, exactly opposite. The house where Lincoln died is also a sacred shrine and one visits it and examines the many personal relics of our martyred president with a devout reverence.

I have had various rides along the Potomac, once in cherry blossom time; and I have crossed the river on each of the three available bridges. My trip to Washington's house was by sterner down the river to Mount Vernon. But I must not weary you with all I have seen and heard.

Last Wednesday I was one of about 2,500 who attended the third of the White House garden parties, with the

S. crest in gold on the top, read: "Mrs. Harding, At Home, Wednesday afternoon, June 1st, from five until seven o'clock." On the left hand corner of the envelope was "White House" in gilt letters. An admission ticket for each individual bore name and address and "not transferable." Arthur presented our three tickets to an officer at the east gate. Later, and elsewhere, they were collected by another officer. We were twenty minutes slowly moving up the stone steps, through the east colonnade and on to the lawn before we reached President and Mrs. Harding, who stood on a rug, and received and shook hands with each guest. You passed on over the big, beautiful grounds where gaily gowned women or well groomed men moved about admiring the spacious garden with its wonderfully cultivated flowers and shrubs, chatted with one another or listened to the famous Marine Band, who played on the great fountain.

You could see the silver aprons gleaming between the bright red coats of the musicians. Under handsome awnings ice cream and cake were served by colored waiters.

Although the scene was one of peace and gaiety, the ladies were here and there. The lower story of the House was open to all. We entered from the broad porches and saw the Blue room, the Green room, the Red room, the State dining room and the historic East room. In my guide to Washington it says "The White House is familiar to more people than any other house in America," "a national possession." In the magnificent ball room (East room) the Navy-Jockey Band, in white with navy blue trimmed suits, played for all who danced. At seven o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Harding left the lawn and joined the last ones on the floor, the president dancing with a cousin from California, and Mrs. Harding with Secretary Christian.

Yesterday was the fourth garden party, and the guests of honor were the soldiers of the Army and Navy in various hospitals.

No line of the social gatherings at the White House can be more approved than this courtesy to our heroes. No other can better express the sense of justice and the warm sympathy that are acknowledged characteristics of our Chief Executive and The First Lady of the Land. J. C. Crawford.

HYMENEAL

James Zangl.

On Wednesday morning, June 16th, 1921, at 7:45 o'clock, Miss Constantine Irene Zangl and Mr. Grant Jones were united in marriage. The ceremony took place at the St. Barnabas parsonage, the Rev. Father M. G. Stier officiating. The couple was attended by Miss Dorothy Dunton and Mr. Clifford Jones, brother of the groom.

The bride was attired in grey tulle and carried a shower bouquet of salmon roses and anthurus. The bride's attendants wore blue organdy, with a corsage of pink roses.

After the ceremony, the wedding party joined the guests at a three-course breakfast served in the Hotel Maso. The dining room was prettily decorated with yellow daisies and ferns. Soon after the breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Jones left in their car for a week's trip through the state.

The guests were: Mrs. Thomas Jones, Sr., Mrs. Thomas Jones, Jr., of Arena; Mrs. Anna Williams, of Hillside; Miss Lena Yonker, Miss May Zangl, of Spring Green; Miss Gertrude Hocher, of Madison; the Misses John Roberts, Genevieve Hottmann, Evelyn Sharratt, Viola Speck, Cleo Voss, Irene Voss, Helen Voss, Marion Voss, Margery O'Hara, Frances Haas, and Mr. Eugene McCabe.

The bride is a graduate of the class of 1921 of the Mazomanie high school. She has lived in Mazomanie for a number of years and has made many warm friends. The groom is a resident of Arena, where the young couple will make their home. They were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Their many friends extend congratulations and good wishes.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Harriet Ward Beecher Stowe's famous story of slavery before the civil war is well represented in the dramatization of this well known story, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and as produced by Terry's excellent company. The presentation is an interesting one, and is given in its entirety just as depicted by the author. The company that Terry carries this summer is equal to those that are seen in the larger city theaters. He having spared no expense to make the company one of the strongest in the east. The cast is made up of the very best talent. The scenic and electrical effects complete, in fact the show as put on by the Terry company is spoken of by the press and public as a splendid presentation of the national drama. The musical part of the show this year is to be considered: three bands and orchestras are carried that are the talk in every city visited, being composed of a high class array of solo musicians. The show is advertised to give one performance at Mazomanie, Friday, June 17th.
