A reformer is getting ready to call a convention of women who are opposed to short skirts. And the Peoria Press and Appeal by telephone took to the streets to report the meeting.

Radio Association.

On January 19th, the radio enthusiasts of this village met and formed an organization to be known as the Radio Association of Mazomanie. On January 20th, a meeting was held at the Hotel Mano radio station, at which the following officers were elected:
Gene Beckman, president,
E. B. Bauer, vice president,
W. A. Grifflin, Jr., secretary and treasurer.

The objects for forming this association were, first, to give the people of this community a better knowledge of radio and to give them all assistance possible, in the radio line; second, to promote fellowship among the local radio enthusiasts and for the furtherance of radio research. The association is desirous of a large membership. All those interested can get further information from the officers.

As a purgative, Chamberlain's Tablets are the exact thing required. Strong enough for the most robust, mild enough for children. They cause an agreeable movement of the bowels without any of that terrible griping. They are easy and pleasant to take and agreeable in effect.—Adv.

"He slapped me every day in 1921," says a New York wife, suing for divorce. Really, that is entirely too soon.

A Failure.

The agreement reached at the Washington conference of limitation of armaments may seem important a year from now, or five years from now, but today there is little but disappointment.

The conference was called for the avowed purpose of trying to find a way of limiting land and naval armaments. Nothing has been done as to land armaments—each country is left free to maintain as large a standing army as it can support.

An agreement was reached to scrap a few battleships. But battleships have been made obsolete by the development of aircraft. A battleship today is a liability rather than an asset.

The conference discussed rules to govern future wars, but any intelligent school boy knows that it will be difficult not impossible to live up to any rules if another war comes. When an individual, or a nation, is fighting for its life, rules are discarded.

The conference was largely if not wholly a failure, and we might as well admit the fact. No one nation was wholly to blame. There is blame enough to go around.

road officials had a hearing in this village, Tuesday, regarding the installing of an alarm bell at a crossing about half a mile east of the depot, known as the Clough crossing.

A Boston professor says "is is a girl's right to be alluring." Most of them seem to regard it as a duty.

Baseball is our national game, and Judge Landis seems to be our national game warden.

No Substitute Offered.

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety-nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best remedy for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say, that it can be depended upon.—Adv.

OF LOCAL INTEREST

—One person was killed every thirty-five minutes in automobile accidents during 1921. The total for the year probably as high as 15,000. This is the estimate made by the national safety council. Considerable toll for carelessness, which is just another word for recklessness! For practically every automobile accident is preventable. Paste this on your windshield, if inclined to take chances.

—Middleton Times: The latter part of September Theo. H. Ziegler missed one of his pigs; a hole in the straw stack led to the conclusion that it had crawled in under the straw, and thinking the animal was smothered to death, no effort was made to dig it out. On Wednesday, January 13, after 115 days, the pig was standing beside the straw stack, emaciated, hoofs grown long, and hair rubbed off the back, barely able to walk, but apparently healthy. It is supposed the animal "worked her way" into the straw pile and could not get out; she then must have eaten the straw around her until she was able to turn around. The pig weighed 115 pounds when it disappeared and now it weighs only about 75 pounds.

Even colored people can tell white lies.

There are no traffic cops on the road to perdition.

You can prove a divorce suit, but you cannot clean it.

Wouldn't Europe be in a sad fix if Columbus hadn't discovered America?

MARXVILLE

A wood bee was held for Mrs. Anna Hedmann last week.

Mrs. Herman Wolf, who has been ill for some time, is improving.

Adam Miller has been hauling lumber from Cross Plains to build an addition to his barn.

Carl Brockmann, Sr., of Berry, fell while going down the cellar stairs recently, and broke one leg in two places.

Carl Ketelboeter and son, Harold, and Ewald Ketelboeter and son, Melver, returned home from Milwaukee Wednesday last week.

Few Sample Cases.

People buy pleasure cars for which they have little real use, the upkeep of which eats into their incomes at a fearful rate.

Others pay car fare in going a few miles to the city to buy a few necessities.

Men pay two prices for clothing because they like to patronize fashionable tailors, and working girls and women buy fur coats at from $50 to $200 on the installment plan.

"What fools these mortals be"

Photographs of Mars.

More than 100,000 photographs of Mars have been taken at the Lowell observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz. Numerous exposures are made on each plate with the expectation of getting the moments of best definition of the planet.

Trustworthy All Through.

You can always trust the man who sees something fine about everything. When you say, "It was a cold night last night," if he chimes in, "But it is fine this morning!" and keeps it right up all day long, you are safe in stepping up and placing your pocket-book in his hands. It will be all right when you call for it.—Skeptical.

8% Cumulative Preferred Stock

Preferred as to Assets and Dividends. Beginning January 1, 1924, $10,000 of Preferred Stock must be retired each year and not to exceed $20,000 may be retired at par and accrued dividends, from profits, if sufficient. Redeemable in amounts in excess of $20,000 at the option of Company on dividend dates after 1925, upon 60 days written notice, at from 105% to 100% depending upon date of retirement. Dividends payable semi-annually upon January 1 and July 1 of each year.

COMPANY: The Keeley-Neckerman Company is one of the oldest and soundest business houses in the State and the largest department store in the City of Madison. It has always enjoyed the confidence and good will of the public. This is clearly reflected in the growth in Sales during the past five years:

1916.....	$435,608.06	1919.....	$615,818.72
1917.....	404,824.60	1920.....	778,000.00
1918.....	463,724.13	1921.....	875,000.00

EARNINGS: For the same period, after allowance for taxes and depreciation, the net earnings have been in excess of five times the current preferred dividend requirement.

ASSETS: Over Net Assets, after taking into account this re-financing, are Three Times the amount of this issue, with over $250,000 represented by Merchandise Inventory of saleable goods. Despite the falling prices of last year, the Company increased its sales both in volume and total amount, and this inventory represents less than four months turnover.

The future plans of the store, under new management, involve a sound program of conservative expansion which the rich trading area of Madison and its surrounding territory amply justifies. The re-financing and proposed expansion offers an opportunity to investors in Madison and vicinity of securing an exceptionally high grade preferred stock.

Integration of the steel corporation is represented about 40 per cent of the steel production of America. The rest is mostly in the hands of a few large corporations. In ordinary times the steel corporation, by example, stabilizes all steel prices. If this permissible (it is even desirable, because stable and fair prices are essential to solid and continued prosperity) why would it be wrong for the farmers to utilize central agencies that would have similar effects on agricultural products? Something like that is what they are aiming at.

Some farmers favored by regional competition and contiguity, such as the citrus-fruits of California, already have found a way legally to merge and sell their products nationally and in accordance with seasonal and local demand, thus improving their position and under the consumer a reliable service of assured quality, certain supply, and reasonable and relatively steady prices. They have not found it necessary to resort to any special privilege, or to claim any exemption under the anti-trust legislation of the state or nation. With out removing local control, they have built up a very efficient marketing agency. The grain, cotton, and tobacco farmers, and the producers of hides and wool, because of their numbers and the vastness of their regions, have not found it necessary to remove integration a more difficult task; though there are now some thousands

Some Aspects of the Farmers' Problems

By BERNARD M. BARUCH

(Excerpted from Atlantic Monthly)

As an example of integration, take the steel industry, in which the model is the United States Steel Corporation, with its iron mines, its coal mines, its lake and rail transportation, its ocean vessels, its by-product coke ovens, its blast furnaces, its open hearth and Bessemer furnaces, its rolling mills, its tube mills and other manufacturing processes that are carried to the highest degree of finished production compatible with the large trade it has built up. All this is generally conceded to be to the advantage of the consumer. Nor does the steel corporation inconsiderately dump its products on the market. On the contrary, it is so acts that it is frequently a stabilizing influence, as is often the case with other large organizations. It is master of its distribution as well as of its production. If prices are not satisfactory the products are held back or production is reduced or suspended. It is not compelled to send a year's work to the market at one time and take whatever it can get under such circumstances. It has one selling policy and its own export department. Neither are the grades and qualities of steel determined at the caprice of the buyer, nor does the latter hold the scales. In this situation of one unit and another, with a turn-over of a billion dollars a year. They are giving the farmers business experience and training, and so far as they go, they meet the need of the farmer for a fair grading, but they do not meet the requirements of rationally adjusted marketing in any large and fundamental way.

The next step, which will be a pattern for other groups, is now being taken by the grain-traders through the establishment of sales media which shall handle grain separately or collectively, as the individual farmer may elect. It is this step—the plan of the Committee of Seventeen—which has created so much opposition and is thought by some to be in conflict with the anti-trust laws. Though there is no before congress a measure designed to step up on this point, the grain-producers are not relying on any immunity from anti-trust legislation. They desire, and they are entitled to co-ordinate their efforts as effectively as the large business interests of the country have done. In connection with the selling organizations the United States Grain Growers Incorporated is drafting a scheme of financing immediate and capitalization of any agencies which are indispensable to the successful utilization of modern business methods.

It is essential that the farmers should proceed gradually with these plans, and aim to avoid the error of occupying the existing marketing machinery, which has been so laboriously built up by the grain-traders. Before they have a tried and proved system of supplementary mechanism. They must be careful not to become enmeshed in their own reforms and lose the perspective of their place in the national system. They must guard against fanatical devotion to new devices, and should seek articulation with the general economic system rather than its reckless destruction as it relates to them.

truth of the rumors about his wife and boarder, blew his head off with a shot gun. Tipt was some years ago, and in a few months after Havak's tragic death, his widow was united in marriage with Swanda.

Of late the couple are alleged to have lived in a constant tarrad, rumor having it that Swanda suspected that his wife had again transferred her affections. Friday morning the couple are known to have quarreled, and along in the forenoon Swanda was up town and procured a .32-caliber revolver and cartridges. He apparently went home and renewed the quarrel, as appearances of the room after the tragedy was discovered led to the conclusion that Swanda's fight had ended, as Mrs. Swanda's body was in a corner of the room, and had the appearance of having been beaten before the gun was brought into play. Swanda had apparently forced her into a corner, placed the gun at close range to the side of her face and fired the fatal shot. He had then wrote his note, placed the muzzle of the gun beneath his chin and ended his own life with one shot.
