OF PERCALE AND DIMITY

Polka dotted percale and white checked dimity make this pretty dress for little missy. It is in two pieces. The blouse of the dimity has a Peter Pan collar and turn-back cuffs adorned with feather stitching of silk floss. A white silk cord ending in small tassels is laced across the front of the bodice and a patch pocket at one side maintains that practical things can be pretty.

"A Country Boy Scout."

Barrett; Mr. McCloskey, Keith McCutchin; Norman Tolliver, Archie Hankerson; Moe Skinsky, Keith McCutchin; Wm. Long Lee, Glen Schoeneman; Flapjack, Otto Harris; Tubby Timmons, Curtis McCutchin; Squirmy Malone, Kenneth Singler; Squirmy Bean, Martin Faris; Buster Brown, Clifford Hamilton; Freckles Klosson, Pay Welch; Leathly Smith, Wm. McCutchin. Place—A small coal mining settlement in Pennsylvania. Time—Present day.

Lessons From Enclines.

Have you learned lessons only of those who admired you, and were tender with you, and stood aside for you? Have you not learned great lessons from those who reject you, and hence themselves against you? Or who treat you with contempt, or dispute the passage with you?—Walt Whitman.

The Blue Law.

I would like to say a word or two in regard to the Blue Law. The writer believes that as far as the Blue Law is concerned, that it is all right. It seems that I am at a loss to understand the law.

I do not have very much confidence in the speaker who spoke here last Sunday. In the beginning of the lecture the speaker announced that the audience was the jury and he was the attorney for the defendant. I want to say that the attorney for the defendant cannot defend cold or hot air fans.

For the reason I say this, there is no doubt many of you have been on a jury for else attended trials. You have heard any jury or any court of the U. S. condemn any criminal without giving the criminal a chance to defend himself.

The speaker has condemned the merchants of Mazomanie, calling them thieves and criminals. I, as a merchant, want to say to you, my friends, that in forty-five years of my life I am the first time that I ever heard anyone call me a thief or criminal. You know as well as I that the merchant is the man that takes more abuse behind his property counter than any man in the U. S., but it has never come to such an unlawful expression as before an audience. I know that that is not a Christian expression which the speaker intends to be. I want to say to you that Christianity is not only carried by men like the speaker, but there are ten to one good Christian merchants and even better than the speaker. I want to say to you that the common people of the U. S. are to blame for the biggest share of our prosperity. The commercial people of the U. S. are the biggest financiers to support Christianity. I will prove to you in regard to the above mentioned, that in our own village I know of one merchant in particular, that has donated last year over $100,000 to the church and all that port Christianity. I also want to say that I am convinced that a man like the speaker, and lets others which are classed with him, do not donate one-tenth of any of the above figures to build up the Kingdom of God, but are always ready to collect money in order to tell the people what to do.

I also want to answer your question in regard to closing on Sunday. The speaker has stated that the merchant who keeps open on Sunday is a criminal and thief. It is a matter of opinion, that if the merchant is selling goods which I know and you know that every dollar's worth of goods we sell you get value received. How much value did you get last Sunday at the meeting for the cash money which changed hands on the Sabbath day?

I want to say to you that there is no more crime for a merchant to sell you a loaf of bread on Sunday for ten cents than there is for the speaker to collect from a dollar to ten dollars on the Sabbath day.

If there is a state law that every business place should be closed on Sunday, where are your village officials? Where are your village fathers, and church authorities?

If you want to know why we keep open on Sunday, I'll make it short and sweet. I'm going to take off the lid and let the cat out of the bag. 12 cents of those who half raised their heads when requested in favor of closing the stores on Sunday will pay for their goods as they get them. I am sure that every merchant in the town will be glad to close their store on Sunday.

In the record of the stores you will find that the Christian people believe in paying cash on Sunday, and that's why one merchant keeps his store open.

I want to say one more thing in regard to merchants being thieves and criminals, like the speaker called them. If you look in the records of the courts you will not find one merchant out of a hundred who has been convicted for any criminal charge of theft. If the newspapers tell the truth, there are a lot of a kind that pretend to be in the class which the speaker is who have been convicted for murder and theft.

I want to say to you, my friends, that in forty-five years of my life I never raised a hand against any man, and I have no court record of any kind. Never have I had anybody insult me as your speaker did. I consider that every word that man said in regard to merchants is not true. No Taylor.

BLACK EARTH

William Jackson returned, Thursday, from a visit to southern Texas. Howard Sobel and his sister, Miss Alma, E. C. Johnson and William Yoss went to Madison, Tuesday.

The administration sale of the Miss Lendel property was held, Wednesday, and sold to Bert Stuart, subject to court sanction.

The Fourth Estate.

The expression "the fourth estate," referring to newspaper workers, is quoted to Edmund Burke, who is quoted in Thomas Carlyle's fifth lecture on "Heroes and Hero Worship," as saying: "There are three estates in parliament, but in the reporters' gallery under these sits a fourth estate, more important far than they all." This was in 1830. In this country where class distinctions are not made politically little ever is heard of the three estates—the nobility, the clergy and the people—but the term "fourth estate" is comparatively common.

Meter as a Measure.

The meter is the unit of length in scientific work. Almost all the countries of the world, with the exception of the British empire and the United States, have adopted this unit along with the rest of the metric system of which it is a part. The meter is 39.37 inches or 32.8 feet, an absolute unit, while the foot is arbitrary. The meter is the 10-millionth part of some quarter of a terrestrial meridian, that is, of a degree of longitude. It is, accordingly, based on an invariable distance and can be checked at any time.

As a purgative, Chamberlain's Tablets are the exact thing required. Strong enough for the most robust, mild enough for children. They cause an agreeable movement of the bowels without any of that terrible griping. They are easy and pleasant to take and agreeable in effect.—Adv.

A Friendly Tip.

A young woman tells of dining out and being seated next to the six-year-old daughter of the house. When her mother left the table for a moment the little one leaned toward her guest and said in a low, admiring tone, "Now, do be careful, 'cause these are our very best table glasses."—Boston Herald.

PLAIDS AND FRINGES

Fashion still puts striped materials in the lead for sport skirts, but they have some competition in plaid and checked patterns in all skirt materials. Checks with fringed edges, are reminiscent of shawls and they make many of the smart new models in which the fringe is substituted for a hem at the bottom of the skirt and also finishes the patch pockets. A skirt of this kind appears in the picture above, cut on simple lines and having a separate belt of the material. The fringed materials are particularly smart in the new wrapped skirts with the fringed edge arranged to run from belt to hem.

Sport skirts and street skirts are a little longer than they were, the regulation length being from six to eight inches from the floor. Flamed in plain colors, in stripes and plaids, is a rival for percale and other cloths.

WE HAVE NOT SAID MUCH—

About our bargains lately, for our customers are advertising them for us. People come and say: "Can you give me a bargain in a suit and overcoat like you sold Mr. So and So?" And from other towns and states they write: "We hear that you are selling suits and overcoats cheap. Please send me two or three suits to pick from."

People don't order clothing from us just for the sake of buying from us. There is a reason. They are after saving the $15.00 or $20.00. At the present time, we have values that nobody can duplicate.

Time was when sailors would not think of sailing without a charm or pocketpiece of some kind to ward off bad luck. Wind-bowls were a favorite and in nearly every port were incident to sell them. Tattoos were considered essential for bon voyage, especially the butterfly on the shoulder predominated for good luck. A pig tattooed on the foot was assurance the man would never drown.
