ITEMS FROM LONG AGO

FROM THE FILES OF THE SICKLE

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Saturday, Feb. 17, 1877.—N. T. Williams and Miss Elizabeth Jones, both of Spring Green, were married at the home of John Murrah, February 14. Sixty-nine cases of small pox are reported from the town of Highland, Iowa county, four of which have recently proved fatal. Mazomanie is thus far free from this disease.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Saturday, Feb. 19, 1887.—Thomas Depp and family have moved here from Roscholt.

A bridge across the river near here seems an assured thing.

John Coombs, 60, of Bee Town, committed suicide Tuesday rather than go to Lancaster on a lawsuit.

Gustav Lenz and Miss Rosa Fisher of Milwaukee, were married at the home of Oscar Stadelman February 15.

John Koley, of Honey Creek, was killed by being thrown from a load of hoop-poles when his team ran away last week.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Friday, Feb. 19, 1897.—Mrs. Mary Enright (Mary Lantz) and baby, who died in Chicago Sunday, were buried here Wednesday.

C. E. Kuntz, of Black Earth, has bought the Horace Bryant farm in Vermont.

Three blind pigs paid $50 each at Mr. Horv's to have their eyes opened last week.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Friday, Feb. 15, 1907.—A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Math. Thiel of Marquette Monday.

Ralph Garfoot and family have moved to Iowa.

The rural route is to take in the river road shortly.

Henry McCormick, of Madison, was buried here Monday.

OBITUARY

Miss Sarah Hawley.

Sarah Hawley was born at Mill Creek valley in the township of Arena, Iowa county, Wisconsin, on September 12, 1835. Her father, Wallace Hawley, enlisted during the civil war, during which he passed into the great beyond. Her mother, Martha Hawley, preceded her in death by about forty years.

She had two brothers and four sisters: Alfred, Joe, Elizabeth, Harriet, Emma and Ellen, all of whom have passed over into the World Eternal.

After the death of her parents, she lived for a short time in the town of Black Earth, after which she made her home with her nephew, James Lockwood, with whom she resided for the last twenty-five years, and in whose home in Mazomanie she died on February 4, 1927, at the age of 92 years, five months and two days.

She leaves to her dear husband, several nephews and nieces, and a large number of other relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday afternoon, February 16, in the Mazomanie Methodist Episcopal church, and interment was made in the Mazomanie cemetery. Rev. Edward Doherty officiating.

Those from out of town attending the funeral services were: Mrs. Frank Clark, Mrs. Thresa Richards, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Chapman, Frank Pech, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bullesch and daughter, Jane, Richard Royston, Redden Royston, Mrs. Bernetta Smith, Mrs. Clara Tremping, Mrs. Wm. Kelly, Mrs. Bessie Yokum, Mrs. Lizzie Rafal, of Madison; Mr. and Mrs. William Winick, of Wisconsin Rapids.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our neighbors, friends, neighbors, and also the singers for the help and sympathy in our time of sorrow. Also for the floral offerings.

James Lockwood and family.

AUCTION SALE.

Legislative Sideights.

By O. D. Brandenburg.

Madison.—Just as two or three years ago this writer admonished citizens to "watch Zimmerman," whose stuporous role was duly impressive, he now suggests that like attention be awarded Senator W. S. Goodland's name publisher. Studious analysts of politics see in Goodland large possibilities. He is of rather a towering type, both physically and temperamentally. Indefatigable at the primary he won as an independent, and it is obvious that independence is his outstanding characteristic. He is respected by all factions. His integrity is fundamental, his purpose of statesmanlike quality. Mr. Goodland talks to the senate in conversational tone, is never demonstrative. Watch him.

Senator Boldt of Sheboygan Falls ratiocinates with originality. It was he who, using his wits in an unusual, perceived a bit of economy in combining the document rooms of the two houses—a deduction ever so simple, practical, whether it ever happens or not. Now he would erect a state office building right in the capitol park, thus saving the cost of buying a site. As you recall, the park slopes sharply to the west, and directly there, into that hill, the senator would dig horizontally, prevailing his edifice and fronting it on Mifflin street opposite the city hall. Easily the structure could be of two airy stories, with its roof on a level no higher than the present capitol terrace. The scheme is utterly practicable and about $150,000 for a site outside could be conserved; but what hullabaloo would issue from the esthetic element if the good senator's dream were in prospect of coming true?

As viewed by the philosophic eye, of Wallace Ingalls, assemblyman from Racine, the session of the legislature seems to be drifting "without chart, compass or apparent leadership." Occasionally the more violent of some of the factions break the silence with a "spasm of interest in some phase of the passing show." Some of the high-powered factional members are sleeplessly "lurking in their respective lairs ready to spring whenever a chance of advantage appears and are viewing each other with more or less alarm." Occasionally some sort of a political bait more or less alluring is flung but thus far there has been little success in attracting the attention of the conservative, independent progressives and democratic members who, as indicated in the speakership fight, constitute a majority and appear to be willing to cooperate in an attempt to make an attempt to make some of the gringoes.

The unanimous report of the interim committee, made up of four progressives, two conservatives and one socialist, "throw a powerful light upon the state of politics" but, as Mr. Ingalls says, attracted little or no attention. It really was a "milestone of great significance along the highway." The committee had before it the investigation of taxation and state affairs, probably all the information humanly possible to obtain and its report reflected sound economic thought in Wisconsin and must go far in settlement of many of the political economic controversies which have been in issue in Wisconsin for nearly a quarter century.

This committee found that the only way to reduce taxes is to reduce them; that Wisconsin is under greater tax burdens than surrounding states; that the theory of shifting tax burdens is a lost art and practically impossible; that inheritance tax rates are more than likely to induce changes of residence from Wisconsin; that the corporate income tax system such as we now have is of doubtful propriety in view of the lesser burdens in surrounding states in this respect.

In addition, the interim committee presents a tentative educational bill worthy of serious attention and also another measure of great merit wherein a supervisory board is constituted which does away with many commissions and involves a real budget system. It is being heard that this steady element, in the assembly at least, may try to take charge of its own affairs while the "more violent" are sparring for political opportunity, and so ahead with a program something like this, as outlined by Mr. Ingalls:

Relieve tax burdens by exempting personal property from taxation. Tax burdens in Wisconsin from all units and sources last year were nearly one hundred and forty-five millions. This personal property tax relief would be about equal in country and city. In proposing this the ten thousand tax units in the state should be asked to cooperate by reducing their expenditures just a little for a year or two, in other words, inject a little real economy into the expenditures of state, county, town, village, city and school district wherever possible. This will reduce tax burdens to our people of approximately seven million dollars, and the only way to do this is to do it," declares Mr. Ingalls.

BOB CUSTER

"CACTUS TRAILS"

Bob at his Fighting Best in Wyoming Oil Fields! Behind the drillers that looked to the Wyoming town, some pack of human wolves! And between them and their prey was one lone deputy sheriff—a bulwark of the Law against a sea of Lawlessness!

ALSO COMEDY: "Roses and Roses."

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 19

LEATRICE JOY

"Nobody's Widow"

Charles Ray, Phyllis Haver, David Butler

Grass widows are not so green! Here's one that knew a thing or two.

SHE TRIED TO LOSE her husband, but he refused to be ditched and he became the liveliest "widower" his wife would be. "Widow" ever saw! All of which proves that husbands sometimes come back when they are wanted or not and that gentlemen do not always prefer blondes. Make a date with her—she will show you a good time!

ADDED ATTRACTIONS: News and Fox Varieties.
"Sweden Today."

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 20

ALSO: Gump Comedy, "A Close Call."

TUESDAY, (Family Night) FEB. 22
(The Family admitted for one adult ticket.)

"THE ICE FLOOD"

A Stupendous Drama of the North Woods

A veritable mountain range of ice—thousands of tons of ice—bearing down pell-mell, seeming bent on the destruction of a helpless raft drifting alone in a frail launch, hopelessly caught in the path of its terrible ruthless rush! "How do they do it?" you will ask breathlessly. How CAN they do it?

Featuring—
KENNETH HARLAN and VIOLA DANA
A stupendous performance of "The Brute Breaker," a great novel by Johnstone McCully.

ALSO COMEDY: "Oh For a Nurse."

Legislative Sidelights.

By O. D. Brandenburg

the people as well as office holders may have something to say about the names which go on a primary ballot, and also something to say about the principles and issues, and in order that platforms may be made before election instead of after "for it has come to be that the primary is the election itself." The committee would bring this about by holding the primary county and state conventions—made up of delegates elected by primary ballot at the spring election, then nominees to go on the primary ballot without competition; other candidates to go on the same as now. State conventions so made up by the respective parties would make platforms, thus insuring presentation of issues and principles before election instead of after.

"Delay is highly unsatisfactory. The people demand action and demand it now," Mr. Ingle insists.

If Assemblyman Clinton G. Price of Juneau county had only kept out of the senatorial contest at home and stuck to the lower house one could see him on the rostrum now, sacred to Speaker Elbert. As floor leader of the progressives at the last session he would have been the logical candidate at this session. His name appears creditably upon the able report of the interior committee.

Winter Everett, veteran correspondent, secretary of the Wisconsin real estate board for seven years past, is one among many whose tenure and interest in the legislature, through the processes of Gov. Zimmerman. Few men had knocked off so many columns for the Wisconsin press up to the time he entered the public service, all practically for the old Milwaukee News, the rest for the Oshkosh Northwestern, and no one ever did it quicker. Also rarely was there a man who could hang a long story on so few fragmentary facts. All he needed was a vague hint to produce an extended and intriguing tale.

Senator Markham is the special friend of the frog, now that grim, old Newcomb Spoor of Green Lake is no longer in the legislature. Spoor wrangled a bill through many years ago giving frogs seasonal immunity, but the Horicon senator supplements it drastically, thus:

"No person shall take, catch or kill any frog in this state at any time for purposes of sale or transportation, provided nothing in this section shall be construed to affect any public right of selling or using frogs for fishing purposes in the state. No common carrier shall receive for transportation or attempt to transport frogs."

If the bill finds favor—and should it not?—Wisconsin frogs will have the jump on their timorous cousins in most other states.

One might not imagine it, yet Crawford county, it is said, once paid $2500 in rattlesnake bounties in a single year. Raising reptiles was a business pursued systematically by the thrifty hillbillies. The ordinance required that rattles be presented to the county clerk as the essential evidence on which bounties could be claimed. An incoherent woman from one of the hillbillies is said innocently to have presented the rattles of a receptive official that snakes without rattles breed just the same. Taking the hint the county board at once provided that heads as well as tails must be presented. Immediately the snake population of the Kickapoo countryside began to decrease till now bounties have arrived practically to the vanishing point. A worthy gentleman from the neighboring county of Grant must be held responsible for this bit of local history.

During the editorial campaign last week, solons were edited by a type-setting machine right in the lobby of a leading hotel. The several publishers in the legislature lobbied about with interest and the native familiarity of understanding. Type, dashes, rules and slugs were molded in glistering plenitude.

Assemblyman D. J. Vincent of Kenosha county solemnly avers that a temperamental bull on his farm instantly reacted to a tuberculin test, infamously evacuated the ring from its nose, chased the help into the rafters and gave other striking evidences of the tumultuous success of the treatment.

Two years ago Anton Holly, assemblyman from Kenosha, introduced a bill requiring all fowl to be drawn before placed in cold storage; and it was advanced gradually to the last stage before passage. Any animal ment was forbidden by the rules at that point.

"I regret that the bill cannot be amended," dryly remarked Assemblyman Robert Caldwell of Lodi, now a senator, "for I had an idea that the measure could be greatly improved by a requirement that the tail and one leg should be left on every fowl to carry it home by." The house howled, the bill was killed vociferously, ridicule had achieved its purpose.

10 REASONS FOR BUYING OLDS' SEEDS

First, Backed by Long Experience. This is our 40th year in the seed business. We know seeds.

Second, Tested Seeds. All our Field Seeds show purity and germination tests and comply fully with the Wisconsin Seed Law.

Third, Freedom from Noxious Weeds. There are no noxious weeds in our seeds. You can buy them with confidence.

Fourth, Thorough Cleaning. With our new power cleaning equipment we remove all foreign matter. Do not sow uncleaned or poorly cleaned seed.

Fifth, Home Grown Seed. Our Red Clover, Alsike and Timothy are nearly all Wisconsin grown. Our best Seed Corn, Oats and Barley are Wisconsin grown. Home grown seed is best of most items.

Sixth, Adapted Varieties. Olds' varieties of Corn and Grain have been bred and developed at the Wisconsin Experiment Station and are the ones recommended by them as best for Wisconsin.

Seventh, Certified Alfalfa. All our Grimm Alfalfa is certified by state authorities and sold in sealed bags. Our common Alfalfa is all carefully selected and is guaranteed as to origin.

Eighth, Large Assortment. We have a complete assortment of seeds of all kinds, not only Field Seeds, but Garden Seeds, including Flower Seeds, Bulbs and Plants. If our local representatives do not have what you want they will get it for you.

Ninth, A Home Seed House. Why send out of the state for your seeds? Buy in Wisconsin, save freights and also get the seeds best adapted.

Tenth, High Reputation. Our last argument for using Olds' Seeds is that they are well known for high quality and dependability. They have a reputation the country over, especially in our own state.

Order from our local representatives, BUTZ BROTHERS. Ask them for a catalog if you have not already received one.

Dr. J. F. Brown, formerly of this place, has been appointed physician at the Wisconsin state prison at Wausau. He returns to Wisconsin from St. Louis, where he has resided for some time on account of ill health.

In place of his father's millstone, a daily battle with giant lumberjacks. Instead of a society and society pet for a wife, a struggle to win a fiery daughter of the Big North Woods. There's the drama in "The Ice Flood."

Franz Treitz, of Highland, and Miss Helen Richards, of Spring Green, were married Sunday afternoon at St. Mary's hospital at Madison, when he learned pneumonia would probably prove fatal to him. Mr. Treitz died at midnight.

A card party will be given at the High School gym, Monday evening, February 28, for the benefit of the Public Library. Let us all be advertisers and boosters for this event. Further notice in the Sickle of next week's Committee.

Mrs. John Seachrist was granted a divorce from her husband, John Seachrist, in Judge Zimmerman's court at Madison, Wednesday. By stipulation the defendant did not appear to contest the action, and will pay his wife $250.00 in full settlement.

The Securities Division of the State Railroad Commission warns the people of the state that unlicensed stock and bond brokers and salesmen of Chicago and other outside cities are soliciting purchases of securities in Wisconsin by long distance telephone calls, in connection with which high-pressure methods are used.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank the members of the High school and faculty for their beautiful floral offering and sympathy in my bereavement through the death of my father.

Helen Seich.

Every picture—every poem—every song—every flower that gives its fragrance to the air leaves its influence on the soul.

Every name—every word makes an impression on the mind. And so, when Henry Porter asked our cousin from Germany for a pound of Norwegian eye salve, she thought of something for sore eyes. When he asked her for a dozen cackle-berries she thought a dozen cranberries.

Thus when you hear and see in our store such names as Munsingwear—Humming Bird Silk Hosiery—Jefferson Shoes—Oshkosh, Lee and Headlight Work Clothes—Curlee Dress Clothes—Born and Royal Tailoring you instinctively think of value, service, and satisfaction.

Therefore, keep your mind on this store. Consult us on your clothes needs. This is one of your home stores, and we are here to give you a square deal.

Clearance sale of small left over stocks of stylish shoes. We want to clear our shelves for the new stock. Formerly $3.50 to $6.00. It's just like handing you $3.00 in cash when you buy a pair of these shoes.

Here we have the most wonderful line of Men's Dress Shirts you could imagine. The kind the well dressed city men wear at prices that beats anything we know of. $1.25 to $4.00.

Bewitching new silk Slips at $2.50, $2.75. It's seldom you can find a really nice Slip at this price.

Like "Uncle Sol" we welcome you to this store.
