PULLING WIRE AROUND CORNER

How to pull barbed wire around corners is described in this article clipped from The Farmer, of St. Paul: To The Farmer:—I am sending you diagram (D-700) and plans of a method I have found very convenient for stretching barbs wire around a corner. This requires nothing but an old corn planter, a stout iron bar to drive down the barbed wire, and a large board with a hole through it to put under the wheel to keep it from working down into the ground. The top of the bar can be tied to a convenient tree or post, or it can be braced by a couple of boards set against small stakes.—H. V. L. III.

Everybody cordially invited to all these services.—Edw. Deberry, Pastor.

On the first of May an expedition will leave Madison for an intensive survey of the "agricultural lands of Wisconsin." The best that the Conservation Commission, the Department of Agriculture, the Adjutant General's office, the Bureau of Markets, and the College of Agriculture, at the University of Wisconsin, can furnish will be given in a scientific research into the problems confronting the Wisconsin farmer. The prime purpose of the expedition is economic. It is seeking to learn just what lands in Wisconsin are fitted for farming and what can be used for "re-forestation" only. There are thousands of acres under cultivation which were never meant to be arable. Similarly there are great stretches of land lying fallow which should be under cultivation. And it is just this basic and underlying ill of agriculture that the experts of the state are to study first hand. Such a survey has been made in two or three counties, but to date not enough equipment and men have been available for an expedition on such a scale and of such moment as the one which is soon to set out.

Even at its worst, life is amusing if you have a sense of humor and a sound body.

WORTH WHILE THOUGHTS

Patriotism should be an integral part of every feeling at all times.
For it is merely another name for those qualities of soul which make a man in peace or in war, by day or by night, think of his duties to the fellow and his duty to the nation, through which their and his loftiest aspirations meet and their fitting expression. Theodore Roosevelt.

The greatest room in the world is the room for improvement, and happy is the man who realizes he lives therein. This room is not easily built. It requires as careful sketching, blue printing and construction as any building of marble, stone or steel. It is a room into which we may build our best purposes, our noblest ideals, and our fondest dreams.—Thomas Stock.

In many respects the United States is as barren as any nation on earth.
The great missionary opportunity, therefore, is in this country, and not so much abroad. It is not what a man proclaims as the truth which counts, but what those who are supposed to know the truth, do. Not particularly after a century or so of Christian teaching, such as we have had in this country. And this is as true of individuals as of our nation. What are we as profess a strong missionary spirit, showing to the world as the fruits of Christianity in our own lives?—B. H. McConnell.

TUBERCULOSIS IN DANE COUNTY, 1917-1927.

At the request of the Tuberculosis Committee, appointed by the Dane County Board, a statistical survey of tuberculosis deaths recorded for the past ten years in Dane County was made by the Dane County Surgeon. The records show that 550 lives were lost through this disease during that period of time: 254 being for the city and 296 for the country. Of this number 297 were female and 253 were male. Two hundred thirty-two died while in the ages between twenty and forty. Out of this group of 232, one hundred twenty-six were married and it is reasonable to assume, in the majority of cases the parents of young children. This is significant, in view of the fact that infection through contact takes place most readily in childhood and the seeds of tuberculosis are frequently planted then, which may require active disease in the years to come.

The total number of persons who were married at the time of their deaths is 252. This again is worthy of attention as tuberculosis must always be considered a family problem.

Three hundred fifty-four persons died under the age of forty and only 196 were over 40 years of age.
(Seventy-six of this number were under 20.) This shows the fatality of the disease in the best years of life.

An economic question is also involved. In 156 cases the duration of the disease was from one to four years. In 62 cases the duration ranged from four to twelve years. This means that each one of these patients was more or less incapacitated for a period of time and not able to carry on their activities as they should.

This means an economic loss which the individual, his family or the community must bear.

The fact that, except in two instances, all of the 550 deaths occurred in homes rather than in hospitals offers food for serious thought as those patients have exposed large numbers of people over long periods of time.

The computation of tuberculosis death rates is always based on the number of deaths occurring for every 100,000 (living) population groups.

In compiling these statistics, all persons who were reported as having died at institutions, such as the Wisconsin Hospital for the Insane, The State General Hospital and Morningside were left out except where it could be proven that they were residents of Dane County. As many deaths which should be properly credited to Dane County, have unquestion-ably occurred away from this County in other County and State Sanatoriums. We are reasonably sure that our quota would be very much higher if we had a way of gathering the facts from other Counties.

In a recent intensive case finding demonstration which covered a period of seven years in Framingham, Massachusetts it was found that for every death which occurred from tuberculosis, there were also living cases of tuberculosis in the community.

If that is generally true, and it undoubtedly is, since Framingham was selected for this demonstration because it is a typical American community, then there were in Dane County in 1927 369 persons and in 1926, 441 persons afflicted with tuberculosis in various stages of the disease.

KNOW YOUR SOIL BEFORE BUYING NEW SEED OATS

Even oats have their likes and dislikes when it comes to the kinds of soil in which they are to grow. Certain varieties of oats will give bumper yields when seeded on one type of soil, and on another may return a crop failure.

With this in mind, R. A. Moore, vet-erian agronomist of the Wisconsin agricultural college, makes definite recommendations as to the kinds of oats to sow on the different types of Wisconsin soil. For heavy rich soils, on which the grain is quite likely to blossom, he advises planting State's Pride oats (Wisconsin pedigree 1).
For soils that are well drained, although not particularly high in fertility, he says the Wisconsin Wonder oat (pedigree 11) is in a class by itself; and on light sandy lands, either the Swedish Select (pedigree 5) or the Write Cross (pedigree 19) will respond well.

Experiment and experience, he says, have shown that a heavy seedling rate often does not return as high yields as does a lighter rate of seeding. He recommends 14 bushels to the acre as being enough, particularly if the oats are sown as a nurse crop. In those instances where the crop is to be sown alone, he says that the State's Pride variety need not be put in at more than the rate of 5 bushels to the acre, nor the Swedish Select at more than 2½ to 3 bushels.

Moore is of the opinion that for the small difference in cost between Wisconsin grown pedigreed oats and scrub oats of unknown origin, it would be wisdom on the part of any farmer to avoid the latter, not only because of its unsatisfactory yields, but also because of the large and varied crop losses which are the usual aftermath of such seedings. According to Moore, Wisconsin growers last year stored away several thousand bushels of pedigreed oats, which are now being distributed through their organization, the Wisconsin Experiment Association.

—It's just as well to withhold mean thoughts, until tomorrow, but kind thoughts had better be expressed today.

—Dr. W. W. Moore, of La Crosse, will give a lecture at the M. E. church Monday evening, April 16, at eight o'clock, on "The Philosophy of the Wheelbarrow Man," for the benefit of the Epworth League. Admission 15 and 25 cents.

—The present toll bridge at Boscobel on R. T. H. No. 27 over the Wisconsin River will soon be taken over by Grant and Crawford counties and be made a free bridge, according to an announcement by C. H. Kirch, Madison, engineer for the Wisconsin Highway Commission.

—Miss Duena Billig, who had been missing for several weeks, was heard from at Kansas City, Mo., the first of the week. Mrs. Milton Billig, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Horst, went to Kansas City, Monday, returning home Thursday with the missing daughter.

—To four of our patrons we will sell airplane ride tickets worth $2.50, for only 10 cents through special arrangement with Pilot E. C. Accola. These tickets will be sold for only 10 cents at the showing of "40,000 Miles with Lindbergh" at the Majestic Theatre. See ad for date.

—Thos. Lindgard of Mt. Horeb has been elected district delegate from this district, and his running-mate, Mrs. Marcus, of Musoda, has probably also been elected although closely pressed by Lieut.-Gov. H. A. Huber. The entire state delegation will be nearly equally divided between the two republican factions.

—The eight International Dairy Congress will be held in London, England, in June and July. Congress appropriated $400 to pay the expenses of 10 delegates. The Governor has written to President Coolidge, recommending P. H. Kasper, Clintonville, as one of the delegates. Mr. Kasper, the world's greatest cheesemaker, took first award at the Worlds Fair in Chicago at the Paris Exposition and again at the St. Louis Exposition. Wisconsin, the greatest dairy state should have one of the delegates.

It is poor business to buy of the house-to-house canvasser—the fellow with a good line of talk—the fellow who takes your cash deposit, and then makes the next train out of town. His talk is cheap—so are the clothes he sells.

Statistics prove that rarely does a man ever order a suit from a house-to-house canvasser more than once. It's an unsatisfactory way of buying clothes. You have no come-back if the garments do not fit, and they usually do not fit.

Patronize your home merchant. He is within talking and walking distance when you want him. He is an established merchant, and is entitled to your business in preference to these strangers who are here today and gone tomorrow. Remember.
