GIVES LABORERS VACATIONS

Edward G. Seubert, president of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), who has, March, succeeded Ed. H. W. Stewart as its chief executive, has just announced a new vacation plan for that company which is attracting wide attention.

Whereas in most companies vacations are given only to salaried workers, Mr. Seubert's administration has given them also to hourly laborers on a basis of one week vacation after five years of employment and two weeks after ten years. The new plan places 5,000 employees scattered over ten states of the Middle West. With close salaried workers already receiving vacations, the company will now have 11,000 on its vacation list. The company's hourly paid workers had been repeatedly denied by the previous administration on the grounds of impracticability. "Far from being impracticable," declared Mr. Seubert in announcing the new plan, "we expect to get an appreciable return from it through increased loyalty."

Christ says: Love your enemies. Luke 6:27-31. But I say unto you which hear, Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you.

Blow them that curse you, and bless them which despitefully use you.

29. And unto him that smiteth thee on one cheek offer also the other; and him that taketh away thy cloak forbid not to take thy coat also.

WHO WAS FIRST AMERICAN

KILLED IN THE WORLD WAR?

Armistice day, the anniversary of the cessation of hostilities in the World war, is a time for honoring the memory of the men who lost their lives in that great conflict.

So it is appropriate to inquire into the matter of who was the first American to make that sacrifice, but the inquiry may be surprised to find that there is some dispute as to that.

In fact the claim for that honor is put forth in behalf of several men and deciding the question is a matter of interpretation.

In this issue of The Sickle appears an illustrated feature article by Elmo Scott Watson which sheds some light on this question and also upon other disputed points brought up in "Armistice Day Memories," which is the title of the article. Be sure to read it. You'll find it interesting.

Wisconsin came one half of the nation's peas.

MyRadio

By James Hays

Speak to me, Darling, oh, speak!
The store guaranteed you to talk.
How meekly and weakly you squeak,
How loudly you whistle and squawk!
The baby's learning to walk
And he can say "Mamma" and "Pop!"
You're older than he but you balk—
You whisper and gangle and stop.

Speak to me, radio, speak!
I'll even allow you to sing:
The market review for the week,
A prize-fight—just any old thing.
Jazz music would tickle me pink
A bedtime story will do.
Oh please, Super-het, don't you think
You could say just a sentence or two?

Far into the night I implored
That radio stubborn and still.
It acted as if it were bored
With all of my coaxing until
I gave up and started for bed
And then it remarked with a cough,
"Hooeee—hoo! It's one fifty-five
This is station Grk Grk signing off."

A Center of Contentment

Life has become so complex in recent years that sometimes one wonders where it is all leading. There are well developed professions in narrow specialized lines. With the great flood of scientific knowledge of the past century and the enormous expansion of business and industry, life for the vast majority of Americans is becoming a bit confusing if not distressing.

And hundreds, yes thousands, of harassed, busy, so called successful men are asking the question: Is the game worth the candle?

This spirit, of course, is not so common in communities like Mazomanie where life may be lived on a easier plane, where wealth is not so vital as it is in the great city and where contentment is easier to find. But it is interesting to note that the dwellers of the city who are living at the high speed that dominates their environments, are seeking to get away and learn to live in easier and happier ways.

One man who tells his story found it necessary to leave the city where, he discovered, over 40 per cent of his time was spent in earning rent and a few other such like financial needs of his mode of life. He moved onto a little farm, retained some of his business interests, found that he could produce many of the necessities for his family, and thus live in greater ease and more happily than ever before in his life. Another tells how he became oppressed with the burden of maintaining a social standing, of educating his children in expensive private schools, and of paying exorbitant rents for unsatisfactory places in which to live. He too found his escape by going out into the country. Both have found that it is more important to reduce output than to increase income, and infinitely less difficult.

Those and many other similar articles that have come to the writer's attention all indicate that this modern mode of urban life is becoming a serious burden to thousands and millions of people. It seems, therefore, that we should not envy the big salaries that some of our friends may command in the city, but realize that here in a fine, happy little community where the sight of flowers, trees and lawns is not a matter of curiosity we are living in a veritable center of contentment.

We have heard it said that the child suffers more that formerly took place in the woods than proved to be rather effective after all.

There's only one place for a knocker, observes one of our friends, and that's on the outside of the door.

The self made man of the future will probably boast that his family had only one car.

One good way to avoid unfavorable newspaper publicity is not to do it.

Enough, during the difficulty of learning the English language, a Frenchman recently commented: When I discovered that if I was quick, I was fast; if I was tired, I was fast; if I spent my money too freely, I was fast; and that not to get was to fast, I was more or less discouraged. But, when I was confronted with this sentence: The first one won one dollar prize. I gave up trying to reach myself and decided to allow the experienced to guide me.

Mrs. Aris (seeing writing for first time)—Law, Mrs. Agnes, not be that?

Mrs. Agnes—That'll be some of that wire less caught fire. I'll be bound.

450 INVESTMENT TRUSTS CONTROL HUGE RESOURCES

Modern Trend in Finance Meets Country-Wide Approval.

That the modern trend in investing—the Investment Trust—is meeting country-wide approval is evidenced by the fact that there are some 450 investment trusts of one type or another and that investment trust financing in this country to the present time aggregates in all about three billions of dollars, according to Straus Brothers Investment Institute.

The investment trust has been a type of investment highly approved and widely used in Great Britain. According to a recent estimate Great Britain has 150 investment trusts with resources aggregating more than a billion dollars.

The investment trust movement in the United States has grown rapidly because of the following reasons:

1. The large army of new investors who trace their investment education to the Liberty Bond campaigns.
2. The increasing surplus of capital available for investment.
3. The complexity of modern investment problems.
4. A period of sustained prosperity. The investment trust is simply an arrangement for applying on a large scale a fundamental principle of investment—diversification. As the Federal Reserve Bulletin puts it: "The fundamental principle of the investment trust is the distribution of risk by the investment of funds in the securities and bonds of a great number of enterprises. . . . Such distribution of risk seems to be one of the most practical forms yet devised of affording the investor a secure channel for profitable investment."

There are two types of investment trusts: the management or discretionary type and the fixed or non-discretionary type. In the discretionary type the managers have almost unlimited powers to buy and sell securities and to re-invest the funds as they deem advisable. The plan in the fixed trust is to select a certain number of outstanding stocks, to deposit them with a trustee, and to issue shares against the fixed collateral.

The outstanding investment trust of the management type is the American Investors Corporation. An ideal fixed investment trust is one sponsored by Straus Brothers, called Selected American Shares.

NEW MOTORING LAWS DRAFT

Wisconsin's drastic new traffic code goes into effect on November 4. In order that every motorist may become acquainted with its many radical changes and avoid embarrassment or punishment by the law, a pocket-size handbook on the revised highway regulations has been issued by The Milwaukee Journal.

This digest of the 1929 code gives the new laws in simple, direct, everyday language, differing from all other code books or pamphlets which print only the actual law. The law itself is involved and requires study and time to understand properly while the digest prepared by The Milwaukee Journal was compiled by legal authority who has put everything into compact, simple form which is quickly and readily grasped.

Every motorist should have the comprehensive outline of 1929 Wisconsin state vehicle laws published by The Milwaukee Journal. Individual copies may be obtained by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope.

At The Majestic Theater

Saturday, Nov. 2, we have Douglas McLean in Carnation Kid, a comedy crook picture. Douglas McLean as a typewriter salesman is mistaken for a crook who is smuggling machine guns to a band of gangsters. On his arrival in the city the gang meets the train and take Douglas to their headquarters and his innocent efforts to escape his captors before they really learn who he is, make an amusing and thrilling story.

Sunday, Nov. 3, we have Greta Garbo in Night Mail, in which picture the film critics pronounce her work as a credit to the screen.

Wednesday, Nov. 6, Girl Overboard is an action picture full of thrills which is put over in a big way as the cast is made up of All Stars. We are also showing another episode of the serial, Tarzan, the Mighty.

Home Grown Feeds Produce Biggest Profit

Farmers find that the most profitable feeding practice is that of using home grown grains, but they have, also, found that properly balancing these grains with high protein supplements, in the fact that it increases feeding cost, is the most profitable feeding scheme in the long run. Such high protein supplements when added to home grown grains, materially increase the production in a greater proportion to their additional cost.

In feeding high producing dairy cows, home grown grains furnish carbohydrates and fats necessary for milk production, but they do not furnish protein in sufficient amount to allow the cow the right amount of material for its best production.

Therefore, it is necessary to furnish proteins in other forms to balance the home grown grains so as to furnish curd from which a cow makes milk. A cow can produce no more milk than it is furnished curd for.

Whether a farmer furnishes this protein as a high percentage with commercial mixed feed, or whether he uses a straight high protein supplement, the feeding practice remains the same. In either case, it is to his interest to use that the highest quality ingredients are used. In a case of commercial mixed feeds, a farmer should see that this mixture contains the highest quality protein supplements such as linseed meal. Linseed meal is also valuable as a straight protein supplement in a case where the farmer uses such feeds to balance his ration.

A good ration for a high producing cow may consist of 200 pounds of ground corn, hominy or barley, 200 pounds ground oats, 100 pounds wheat bran, and 100 pounds linseed meal. Feed 1 pound of this ration for each 4 or 5 pounds of milk produced, with clover hay for roughage.

In cases where the farmer is using commercial mixed feeds to balance his ration, the wheat bran and linseed meal may be dropped from the ration and in its place 250 pounds of a 24 per cent feed supplied.

The Citizenship class of the High School, under the direction of Mr. Gregory, has assumed responsibility for maintaining and caring for the shrubbery recently planted in front of the school. To further show its appreciation, the Citizenship class planted 25 seedling elms and walnuts Monday. The members of the Citizenship Forestry committee for this week are Francis Cavanaugh, Glen Howard, Chester Bender, and Merle Lucy.

Last Saturday night, October 26th, saw a meeting of the parents of the boys of the Mazomanie H. S. football team in the Gesme Furniture store. The parents and friends of the boys who gathered there were Mesars, Gesme, Lashway, Carter, Howard, Giesse, Lash, Jones, Stewart, Showers, Barrett, and Gregory. The purpose of the meeting was to plan to reward the boys of the football team by having a football banquet. An excellent spirit of cooperation prevailed and much was accomplished. Mr. Gesme was chosen as general chairman and Mr. Gregory as secretary-treasurer.

Today, Nov. 1, Mazo invades Spring Green undefeated. This will be the crucial game as Spring Green has never been defeated at Spring Green.

Thursday night, November 14, will be well attended.

Football

Friday, Oct. 25, Mazomanie defeated Arena by a score of 26 to 0. The outcome was not unexpected although such a score was not predicted. All through the game Arena was clearly outclassed but was kept in the running by the fine work of Sheehan, Arena quarterback. He made innumerable tackles and was very slippery in offense.

Wilson, for Mazo, uncorked some pretty runs to score two touchdowns, although some good blocking helped a great deal. Hank Lashway played his usual game at running the elms and returning punts. Jones played a fine game on defense, as well as offense, while Harrigan couldn't be stopped by his line plungers. Due to the line opening holes, Harrigan had to be stopped by the backfield in nearly every case.

Rounly Coughlin was a guest at the game. After seeing Mazo pull some plays for long gains, "Rounly" said to Coach Gregory: "I'd take those plays to Madison but they would probably be too dumb to use them." That's what Rounly thinks of our plays. He liked the work of Lashway and Harrigan and commended them on it.

by Mazo and it will mean the championship of the league. Spring Green has undoubtedly a very strong team and Mazo another, so it will be the best team wins today. Come and see the big game of the season and support your team.

The team gives their thanks to the public and especially Mr. Elmer for the fine pep meeting last Wednesday night and will work that much harder for a victory today.

No part of the expenditure of the farmer's income gives him more satisfaction than that expended for home more attractive.
